  Re: Cease and Desist from Breach of Reseller Agreement and Patent Violation

Mr. Breiman:

  I am a lawyer representing ActiveProspect, Inc. If Tech Prosper, LLC[1] is represented by an attorney, please immediately provide this letter to him or her.

  As I am sure you know, ActiveProspect sells an innovative, patented, and highly successful lead verification product called TrustedForm. ActiveProspect is the assignee of U.S. Patent No. 10,614,417 (the "'417 patent"), a copy of which is attached to this letter.

  On September 21, 2021, Tech Proper signed a Reseller Agreement (the "Reseller Agreement" or "Agreement") with ActiveProspect to sell and market ActiveProspect's TrustedForm product. Under that agreement, Tech Prosper agreed to several conditions in exchange for its participation as a reseller. In ¶ 9 of the Reseller Agreement, Tech Prosper agreed that "Ownership of all applicable copyrights, trade secrets, patents and other intellectual property rights in the Product shall remain vested in [ActivePropsect], or in [ActiveProspect's] licensors." Additionally, Tech Prosper agreed that "for a period of three (3) years from the expiration or earlier termination" of the Reseller Agreement it would "preserve as strictly confidential" all the Confidential Information identified in the Reseller Agreement. This includes the "technical information" and "Product details" of Trusted Form.

  Additionally, in September 2021, you, acting on behalf of Data Prosper, created an account on ActiveProspect's website and thereby agreed to its terms of service. In those terms of service, Data Prosper agreed that it was not permitted to, and would not, "reverse engineer, disassemble, or decompile any of the ActiveProspect Technology," including the Trusted Form product.

[1] Our research indicates that Tech Prosper, LLC, Lead Prosper, and Data Prosper, LLC appear to all be related entities. This letter is intended to be directed at each one of them separately and collectively. References to "you" and "Tech Prosper" in this letter include these entities as well you, Ross Breiman, in your personal capacity.

Instead of complying with the Agreement's terms, we have learned that Tech Prosper appears to have used ActiveProspect's Confidential Information to develop a competing "Compliant Lead" product that it recently began advertising and offering for sale. For example, Tech Prosper recently attended the LeadsCon event in Las Vegas where representatives from your company were marketing and selling Compliant Lead and passing it off as Tech Prosper's own creation and intellectual property. We are aware that during LeadsCon, Tech Prosper solicited at least one of ActiveProspect's clients which constitutes tortious interference with our client's business relations. Had ActiveProspect known of Tech Prospect's intended use of its TrustedForm product, it would not have agreed to the Reseller Agreement. Tech Prosper's use of ActiveProspect's Confidential Information to develop a directly competing product is a clear violation of the confidentiality provisions in the Reseller Agreement, the confidentiality provision of the terms of service, and the reverse engineering prohibition in the ActiveProspect terms of service.

As the below screenshots demonstrate, Compliant Lead is an almost exact replica of TrustedForm, which violates the Reseller Agreement and the terms of service:

Moreover, based on our initial investigation of Compliant Lead, it appears that Compliant Lead infringes the '417 patent. Claim 1 of the '417 patent is representative and reads as follows:

A method comprising:

receiving a first request at a lead verification server from a web browser in response to the web browser visiting a web page of a lead generating website and executing a lead verification service script, the lead generating website configured to collect lead data for a lead generator;

responding to the first request at the lead verification server by sending a reference key to the web browser;

collecting information about the lead generating website and information associated with a user of the web browser; associating the collected information with the reference key;

receiving, from an interested third party that is separate from the lead generating website and the lead generator after the interested third party receives the lead data and the reference key from the lead generator, a second request for verification of the lead data, the second request including the reference key; and in response to the second request, sending at least some of the collected information to the interested third party.

The attached claim chart establishes that Compliant Lead infringes at least Claim 1 of the '417 patent.

ActiveProspect demands that you and any entities affiliated with Data Prosper immediately cease and desist from any further use, sale, offering for sale, advertising, or marketing of your infringing Compliant Lead product. Moreover, because your Compliant Lead product was developed in violation of the Reseller Agreement, ActiveProspect demands that you cease and desist use of any of ActiveProspect's Confidential Information in violation of the Reseller Agreement and destroy all source code, documentation, or other materials generated from your improper use of the Confidential Information.

Pursuant to ¶ 8(a) of the Reseller Agreement, the Agreement is hereby terminated effective immediately. Please note that pursuant to ¶ 15, you remain under continuing obligations to protect ActiveProspect's Confidential Information. Pursuant to ¶ 8(b), immediately "return to [ActiveProspect] all technical, sales, and promotional materials pertaining the Product" that have been provided to you. Additionally, you are notified that pursuant to the terms of service, Data Prosper's limited license to use ActiveProspect Technology (as defined in the terms of service) is terminated and any further use of ActiveProspect's Technology is unauthorized.

Should you refuse to cease and desist your conduct, ActiveProspect intends to take all legal actions available to it, including filing suit for patent infringement under 35 U.S.C. § 271, tortious interference, and breach of contract. Additionally, ActiveProspect intends to seek all remedies available, including injunctive relief, monetary damages, and its attorney's fees under 35 U.S.C. § 285, TEX. REV. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 38.001, and ¶ 12 of the Reseller Agreement.

Please confirm within five (5) days that you will comply with these demands. Should you refuse to comply with the demands set forth above, then you must preserve and not destroy all documents and information relevant to this dispute, including electronically stored data, that will constitute evidence in litigation between ActiveProspect and Tech Prosper. We anticipate that relevant data will include, without limitation, sales and marketing material, emails, text messages, and development material associated with the Compliant Lead product.

Nothing in this letter is intended as an election of remedies or limitation of Active Prospect's potential claims against Tech Prosper or its affiliated entities.

Sincerely,

Michael A. McCabe
